

Dobb Industry's 4 method approach to new age manufacturing

As they say, you need to change with the world or be left behind. In a fast-paced manufacturing industry like the FMCG sector, it can be daunting or even overwhelming to try implement new technological systems, let alone change your business model. Dobb Industries does all the hard work for you, our simple, yet effective, 4 method approach to continuous improvement strategies ensures you are getting maximum profit from your production facility.

Step 1: Initial Assessment

Our expert industrial engineers will conduct a site assessment to determine the prioritization of opportunities and/or improvement solutions. Scope of work will be determined together with potential resources and stakeholders.

Step 2: Plan & Design

Once the SOW has been approved, our team will put together a plan targeted at prioritizing unnecessary manufacturing losses and implementation of production opportunities. The base of any business is its employees, which is why we also include workshops to ensure your staff are upskilled and up to date with the latest technological solutions, ensuring a strong foundation from the bottom up!

Step 3: Implementation

Designing and implementing solutions that directly address your biggest production losses using the latest in technology and best practices from around the world, we make certain to both accommodate your current systems as well as amplify your production line to ensure that we are maximizing your profit whilst minimizing your capital expenditure. Progress reports and working hand-in-hand with department leads and teams on the ground are at the forefront of the implementation stage, keeping our finger on the pulse not only assists with overcoming unforeseen challenges but helps with achieving result-driven solutions.

Step 4: Testing and Handover

Measurement of results and horizontal deployment is last in our phased approach. Once the testing has been done and gone through our rigorous safety procedures, we handover our assessment along with any data collected (information library) throughout the process.

Continued support is made available from system queries to staff training, Dobb Industries is there for you!
